Historical Note

The Fells Point Planning Council (FPPC) was an umbrella organization for neighborhood groups in the Southeast waterfront neighborhoods of Baltimore. The FPPC was active during the 1970s and 1980s in a variety of local issues related to the revitalization of Fells Point in the aftermath of the expressway construction debates (known locally as the “road fights”). Issues included liquor board licenses, housing rehabilitation, and housing code enforcement.

Scope and Contents

Organizational records of the Fells Point Planning Council from the 1970s and 1980s, including meeting agendas and minutes, newsletters, and reports on urban planning and expressway construction.
